WHAT UGLY TOES WOMEN HAVE. - Capova chose five hundred beautiful women from whom to model his Venus, and among them all could not find a decent set of toes. If he lived now adays what luck would be have under the dainty little buttoned boots, with their sharp-pointed

As soon as the helpless baby can put i's loot on the ground, and before it can complain in words, shoes are put on it by which the width of the toes is contracted fully half an inch; and usually a stiff counter is ordered in the heel. with some vague idea of "strengthening the ankle." From that time, no matter how watchtu' or sensible its parents may be in other respects, these instruments of torture always constitute part of its dress. The toes are forced into a narrower space, year by year, "to give a good shape to the foot," until they overlap and knot and knob themselves over with incipient corns and busions. Then the heel is lifted from the ground by artificial means and thus the action of the calf muscles is hindered and the elastic cartilage of the whole foot is stiffened at the earliest and most tender period of its growth.

The results are a total lack of elasticity in the step and carriage, and a foot inevitably distorted. American women are noted for their cramped and mineing walk. Southern children are more fortunate in this matter than those in the North, as it is enstomary, even in the wealthlest classes, to let their feet go uncovered until the age of six.

Mothers in the North are not wholly to blame, however, as the climate requires that dered for the foot. As a new last would be required every month or so, very few parents are able to give the watchfulness and money required; but, if the proper shape were initial. quired; but, if the proper shape were insisted upon by those buying shoes, dealers would quickly furnish them.

should naturally be of a stronger and more are unsurpassed in color and finish, and as we heating nature, to enable the animals to lay on to purchasers. [oc20] D. F. WITMER CO. fat and resist the cold successfully, not forgetting the comforts of a good pig house and a yard in connection, as suitable shelter enhances the value of the food. Corn, in different forms, whether fed whole, ground, cooked or otherwise, is the cheapest and best food it fed indiciously. In connection with this some laxative food must be supplied, as well as fresh water daily, to counteract the heating nature of the corn, otherwise heavy feedings of corn will cause skin cruptions and make the animals very uneasy, the irritation being very great, and scratching against the sides of the pen being a great relief to them. If the swill or slop barrels or hogsheads be where water will not readily reeze is cold weather, take a mixture of bran and corn meal, boil a lot of potatoes, turnips, beets, etc., with plenty of water, and as soon as they are thoroughly done mash them well and put at once into the swill tub, the hot water and all, and then put on a good quantity of the mixed meal and bran. If there be not enough hot water with the boiled vegetables, get some more-enough to moisten the massstir it up well and cover up for several hours to steam and become mellow. You now have a slop which will not only keep the pigs healthy, but will make them improve rapidly. Of course, before feeding, more water should be added to make it of the proper consistency.

To every barrel of slop of this kind we add two double handfuls of salt when put to steam; also a couple of quarts of fine bits of charcoal. This we consider absolutely necessary to the continued health and well being of the animals.

THE AWKWARD AGE .-- A wise and sweet woman suggests, as a sovereign remedy for the uncomfortableness of what we are wont to call the awkward age in boys and girls-that time when they are too large to feel like children, and not quite sure enough of themselves to feel like adults-that we should always treat even the smallest children with the courtesy and cousideration that we show to grown up people, and then they wil never feel at a loss as to their reception, thus quite escaping the uncertain and uscomfortable "awkward age." There are few things more important in the right develop ment of a human efeature than self respect. But how is a child to learn to respect itself, if it sees that it is alone in the sentiment-that by ne one else is it respected? More harm is perhaps done children by saubbing than even by weak indulgence. We have all seen homes where the slightest expression of a child's idea on any point under discussion was greeted with, "Who asked you what you thought?" or with some sareasm such as, "Ah, now we shall have the matter settled - Miss Experience is freeing her mind." It is difficult to hit the right mean. We do not want our children troublesome to visitors-grown up people do not care to pause in their talk to listen to the unconsidered opinions of thirteen-but what if we tried the experiment of respectful attention for awhile? Would not the young folk stop talking until they had something to say, quite as surely if they saw that their words were listened to with attention; as if they felt that their voices were but beating the air?

A HUSBAND'S OBEDIENCE. - Very interesting testimony is occasionally given in the Ward will ease at Detroit. Aunt Emily Ward, sister of the late Eber Ward, was recently introduced as a witness, and promulgated her views on the marriage relation to the following effect : Mr. Romeyn-Did you say that Captain Ward was like dough in the hands of his

Witness-I may have said that. I say that of every man that has a wife. [Laughter.]
Mr. Hughes-That's right; I would say so too; I think it is every married man's duty to

Mr. Romeyn-Do you remember saying, in a conversation with young Mr. Ely and Mary, something like this, "If I should say, 'Eber, here is a red chair,' he would say, 'Certainly, it is a red chair;' and if Kate should come in the next minute and say, 'The chair is black, he would say, 'Oh, yes it is black.' "
